Claims 1 to 15. (Canceled).

Please enter the following new claims 16 to 22:

- - -16. (New) A reclosable tray for articles, comprising:

an upper portion and a lower portion, the upper and lower portions have cooperable locking sections adapted to lock the upper and lower portions together and to be openable and reclosable, the lower portion having a plurality of article-receiving compartments, at least some of the compartments being adapted to receive therein particular respective ones of the articles, the upper portion having a plurality of indentations, at least some of the indentations being adapted to cooperate with the particular ones of the compartments to secure in place the particular respective ones of the articles against migration during shipping and handling, and having depths sufficient to extend partially into upper portions of the respective ones of the compartments to be adjacent to portions of the articles, and the lower portion further having an interior sidewall and the upper portion further having an exterior sidewall adapted to frictionally engage the interior sidewall at a plurality of locations along the interior sidewall.

17. (New) The reclosable tray according to claim 16, wherein the lower and upper portions define a one-piece, integral article whereby a first major side of the lower portion and a first major side of the upper portion are joined by a hinge, and second major side of the lower portion and a second major side of the upper portion respectively include first and second upper and lower locking sections, and wherein first and second upper and lower minor sides extend between the first and second major sides of the upper and lower portions respectively.
18. (New) The reclosable tray according to claim 17, wherein the first upper and lower locking sections are tabs that are releasably interlockable.
19. (New) The reclosable tray according to claim 18, wherein the first upper and lower locking portions respectively include first tabs each having a first exterior portion that extends generally parallel to the second upper and lower major sides and a first interior portion that extends in a direction generally obliquely away from the first upper and lower minor sides.
20. (New) The reclosable tray according to claim 17, wherein the first upper and lower minor sides include second upper and lower locking sections to assist in locking the upper and lower portions when the tray is closed.
21. (New) The reclosable tray according to claim 20, wherein the second upper and lower locking sections are tabs that are releasably interlockable.

22. (New) The reclosable tray according to claim 21, wherein the second upper and lower locking portions respectively include first tabs each having a first exterior portion that extends generally parallel to the second upper and lower minor side and a first interior portion that extends in a direction generally obliquely away from the first upper and lower minor side. - - -
